

Conduct Of Rangers' Supporters

Through the medium of your columns, my friend and I would like to express our complete disgust at the disgraceful, outrageous, disgusting and irreverent behaviour of a large section of the huge Rangers' support at East End Park on Saturday.

As most readers have probably heard by now the Ibrox supporters continued to shout, swear, and sing during the one minute's silence for the late John F. Kennedy. As the majority of the crowd paid their last respects to the assassinated President, these barbarians behaved in a way normally attributed to wild animals. Their reasons are obvious—the late President had Irish ancestry and he himself was a Roman Catholic. Surely this despicable behaviour is carrying religious bitterness too far when these men, blinded by hatred, could not accept one of the greatest men of this century.

Whilst attending the match, I noticed many local boys wearing the blue, white, and red of the Rangers, and I appeal to them to look to their laurels and start supporting their own team now before they, too, are caught in this religious mire.

B. CONWAY and R. ZAPORA
29 Wilson Street,
Blairhall,
26th November 1963.

Dunfermline Press, 30 November,
1963

Page 8 Letters

Conduct of Rangers' Supporters

Through the medium of your columns, my friend and I would like to express our complete disgust at the disgraceful, outrageous, disgusting and irreverent behaviour of a large section of the huge Rangers' support at East End Park on Saturday.

As most readers have probably heard by now the Ibrox supporters continued to shout, swear, and sing during the one minute's silence for the late John F. Kennedy. As the majority of the crowd paid their last respects to the assassinated President these barbarians behaved in a way normally attributed to wild animals. Their reasons are obvious – the late President had Irish ancestry and he himself was a Roman Catholic. Surely this despicable behaviour is carrying religious bitterness too far when these men, blinded by hatred, could not accept one of the greatest men of this century.

Whilst attending the match I noticed many local boys wearing the blue, white and red of the Rangers and I appeal to them to look to their laurels and start supporting their own team now before they, too, are caught in this religious mire.

B. CONWAY and R. ZAPORA
29 Wilson Street,
Blairhall.
26th November 1963