

London Dispatch, 27 May, 1838

Dunfermline – Riots – A company of the 79th Regiment (Cameronians) arrived here on Thursday morning, under the command of Captain Cameron, for the purpose of repressing the outrages committed by our mining and weaving population. The same evening a party of men and boys proceeded to the house of a weaver who had rendered himself obnoxious to the combiners, and very quickly demolished his windows and destroyed his web. All attempts to criminate the offenders have hitherto proved fruitless.

Dunfermline. — Riots. — A company of the 79th Regiment (Cameronians) arrived here on Thursday morning, under the command of Captain Cameron, for the purpose of repressing the outrages committed by our mining and weaving population. The same evening a party of men and boys proceeded to the house of a weaver who had rendered himself obnoxious to the combiners, and very quickly demolished his windows and destroyed his web. All attempts to criminate the offenders have hitherto proved fruitless.